CHANCELLOR'S REP

Mining engineering graduate students will continue to receive a steady source of research funding thanks Sumitomo Metal Mining Pog's renewed gi of over $1 million to the Mining Engineering Research Endowment in the College of Engineering and Mines. is recent gi augments the company's initial three-year, $1 million pledge in 2011. According to Rajive Ganguli, chair of the mining and geological engineering department, the stable funding allows students to pursue longterm and more complex projects. Sumitomo Metal Mining Pogo has hired graduates from the UAF program, e Rasmuson family has been a model of philanthropic giving both through their personal giving to UAF and through grants from the Rasmuson Foundation. e extent of the family's philanthropy is inspiring: Elmer Rasmuson made a personal gi to the SFOS Rasmuson Fisheries Research Center and the Rasmuson Foundation made the largest sir gi to the UA Museum of the North expansion. Recent gi s include helping to establish the Dirk Tordo Scholarship Endowment to support students studying Alaska history and utilizing the library's Alaska Im archives, a $15,000 gi to the College of Liberal Arts Alaska Native Arts program for a visiting artist-in-residence, as well as $19,840 for the Chukchi Consortium Library. About and beyond this support is the Rasmuson Foundation's $5 million pledge for ANSEP programs at UAA which will also bene t ANSEP students at UAF. Ed Rasmuson leads the foundation as chair, following the vision of founder Jenny Rasmuson and son Elmer in the tradition of "supporting nonprot organizations which strive to improve the quality of life for people throughout the state."

Industry partners making an impact at UAF

Achievements

Individual

David Argetsingerdonated $12,121 to establish the Paul Boutet Memorial Scholarsh the UAF Community and Technical College.

Dolly Dieter made two $25,000 gi s supporting the e Dieter Family Marine Science Research Scholarship and the National Ocean Sciences Bowl.

Mary A. Jonesdonated $50,000 to establish the George W. and Mary A. Jones Scholarship. Lawrence72 and Nancy Katkindonated kayaks and accessories valued at $16,875 for the Department of Recreation, Activity and Wellness.

Leslye'86 andRichard Korvolacompleted their $25,253 pledge to the Korvola Award for Yakutsk.

William and Carelyn Reeburgloonated stock valued at $30,167 to support the William S. and Carelyn Y. Reeburgh Fieldwork Endowment.

Joseph E. Usibelcoosh E0e9(n)4(d 9 0Qh E>>B421(o)12(n)4(es S)-13.9(c)6(h)4(o)

University of Alaska Fairbanks Chancellor Brian Rogers uaf.chancellor@alaska.edu www.uaf.edu/chancellor/